About This Game

The Earth as we knew it is gone. What's left of humanity now lives inside an asteroid called Lutetia hidden in underspace. You are a space ranger, humanity's last hope in the hopeless struggle against the puppeteers who have taken over all the intelligent species in the Galaxy.

"Space Raiders" is an old-school role-playing game with turn-based battles and lots of exciting storylines. This game is not recommended for those who don't like to read and prefer one-button battles.

Game features:

- A world where even the smallest details are well-thought-out, with its own history full of mystery and intrigue. A world inhabited by many different unusual species.
 - Exciting adventures and stories worthy of being retold over and over again.
- Tactical battles with aliens where using your brain is more important than how fast you can tap the screen.
 - Shape the game story with the choices that you make.
- Develop and improve character traits, battle bots, space suits, spaceship modules and so on.
 - Travel through hyperspace and to different planetary systems
 - Collect ore and organic matter to process in the ship's Converter

Are you sick and tired of just-kill-them-all or hey-Chosen-one-can-you-help-me-out type of games? Then the wild world of Space Raiders is for you!

At the appointed time the jumpengine on the asteroid was activated and Lutetia successful entered Underspace.

It all started when a scout bot discovered a mysterious artifact on Mars...

As the others have pointed out, this is a freemium mobile port, with the only change being that the ability to buy things with real money in the store have been disabled. Like the $12 to buy one time "insurance" in case you lose a battle is gone, but still visible in the tutorial screens. Any time you want to upgrade your ship (the main progression options in the game) you have to stare at a timer bar (the first one I saw was 3 minutes, I don't know if they get longer as you go on) with an option to skip the timer bar for premium currency.

Since the game was originally balanced to "encourage" you to buy premium currency, but now you can't, I suspect the balance of the PC port is off and that the game will become increasingly unpleasant/unbalanced (by design) as you go further in. If I want to subject myself to a freemium experience, I've got much better options on my iPad. I play games on my PC to get away from pay to win designs. There is potentially a lot of content it seems, so if the dev put some effort into properly porting it to PC I think it could be a good purchase.. Definitely a mobile port.

Extremely dense text intros and tutorial.

No music.

Lots to do, but it is all under a veneer of freemium economy.

Needs more work to be worthwhile on Steam.
